peretofore on the question, I should be surprised at the attitude he assumes .-He asks when did Andrew Johnson become a citizen of the Confederate States (I use that term, we are obliged always to use it-the meaning is, a citizen of Tennessee when he entered the Confederate States.), He was a citizen of Tennessee originally. When Tennessee became one of the Confederate States he was in the position of every other citizen of Tennessee. He never disavowed his allegiance to Tennessee; on the contrary, he pretended to represent her in the Federal Senate, and he went back there and pretended to be Governor. How washe released from his allegiance? Tennessee begoming one of the Confederate States, he was obliged to give obedience to her laws, or become amenable to indictment and conviction for treason if he gave aid and comfort to the enemy, or levied war against her. The Constitution the Senater has relied upon so confidently in support of his position has also the clause, "We the People," equivalent to saying we do not mean the people of one single consolidated nationality, but the people of the several States.

Mr. Hill. I have never contended it was consolidated.

Mr. Wigfall. The other sentence I allude to is in the second clause of the fourth article, in which it says, "citizens of each State shall be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States," &c. I don't conceive any additional argument necessary to combat the gentleman's most untenable position.

This day's debate was terminated by laving the bill on the table. There was doubtless other debate on this question which has not reached us.]

ity the President of the United Washington, Sept. 22, 1862.

1, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States of America, and Commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy is terribly fretted because he did not thereof, do hereby proclaim and declare, that hereafter, as heretofore, the war will be prosecuted for the object of practical-THE CHIVALITY OF THE BEING CAVAL- | ly restoring the constitutional relations between the United States and the people thereof in which States that relation where he had been lying sick for some is or may be suspended or disturbed; that time, accompanied by his whife and child, it is my purpose upon the next meeting of Congress to again recommend the adoption of a practical measure tendering pecuniary aid to the free acceptance prrejection of all the slave States, so called, the people whereof may not then oe in rebellion against the United States and which States may then have voluntarily adopted, or thereafter may voluntarily adopt, an immediate or gradual abolishment of slavery within their respective limits; and that the efforts to colonize persons of African descent, with their consent, upon the continent, or elsewhere, with the previously obtained consent of the Government existing there, will be continued. That on the first day of January, in the year of our Level, one thousand eight hundred and sixtythree, all persons held as slaves within any State, or within any designated part of a State, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States, shall be then, thence forward and forever free, and the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authority thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of such persons, and will do no act or acts to repress such persons, or any of them, in any efforts they may make for their actual freedom; that the Executive will, on the first day of January aforesaid, by proclamation, designate the States, and parts of States, if any, in which the people thereof respectively, shall then be in rebellion against the United States; the fact that any State, or the people thereof, shall on that day be in good faith represented in the Congress of the United States by members chosen thereto at which may be committed by any officer elections wherein a majority of the qualified voters of such States shall have participated, shall, in the absence of strong corroborative testimony, be deemed conclusive evidence that such State and the people thereof have not been in rebellion > against the United States. Attention is hereby called to an act of Congress, entitled an act to make an additional Article of War, approved March 13, 1862, and which act is in the words and figures following:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled, That hereafter the follow-

Article: All officers or persons in the military or naval service of the United States, are prohibited from employing any of the forces under their respective commands for the purpose of returning fugitives from service or labor, who may have escaped from any person to whom such service or labor is claimed to be due, and any officer who shall be found guilty by a court martial, of violating this article shall be dismissed from the

Sec. 2. And is & further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.'

Also to the 9th and 10th sections of an act entitled " an act to suppress insurrection, to punish treason and rebellion, to seize and confiscate property of rebels, and for other purposes, approved July 17th, 1862," and which sections are in the words and figures following :

SECTION 9. And he it further enacted, That all the slaves of persons who shall hereafter be engaged in rebellion against the Government of the United States, or who shall in any way give aid or comfort thereto, escaping from such persons, and taking refuge within the limits of the army, and all slaves captured from such persons, or deserted by them and coming under the control of the Government of the United States, and all slaves of such persons on or being within any place occupied by rebel forces, and afterwards occupied by the forces of the United States, shall be deemed captures of war, and shall be forever free of their servitude and not again held as slaves.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That no slave escaping into any slave territory or the District of Columbia, from any of the States shall be delivered up, or in any way impeded or hindered of his liberty, except for crime or some offense against the laws, unless the person claiming said fugitive shall first make oath that the person to whom the labor or service of said fugitive is alleged to be due, is his lawful owner, and has not been in arms against the United States in the present rebellion, nor in any way given aid or comfort thereto; and no person engaged in the military or naval service of the United States shall, under any pretense whatever, assume to decide on the validity of the claims of any person to the service or labor of any other person or surrender up any such person to the claimant, on pain of being dismissed

And I do hereby enjoin upon and order all persons engaged in the military and navil service of the United States, to obey and enforce within their respective spheres of service, the Article and Sections above recited. And the Executive will in due time recommend that all citizens of the United States who shall have remained loyal thereto throughout the rebellion, shall, upon the restoration of the Constitutional relations between the United States and their respective States and people, if the relation shall have been suspended or disturbed, be compensated for all losses by acts of the United States, including the loss of

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and casued the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this the twenty-second day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-seventh.
